

Announcing our first Education Seminar

Mark your calendars: Phoenix Camera Club's first education seminar will be held on Saturday, October 17th, 2009, from 2 pm to 5 pm at the Lexington Hotel. This is the afternoon of our October monthly meeting.

This first class will be a basic photography class. If you don't know or understand what the controls on your camera do or what F/Stops, shutter speed, ISO, aperture, exposure values, auto focus, auto exposure, etc, are, you are welcome to attend. The knowledge of these topics will be the foundation for future classes.

For future classes we are planning on alternating basic classes with more advanced classes. Unless stated otherwise, we will have one class each month on the same day as our monthly meeting. Classes will include lecture, brainstorming, and hands-on activities, as well as mini field trips when appropriate. Come prepared: bring your camera, tripod and flash. Make sure your name is on your equipment. Please check the CLIX and our website for current information and future classes as they are developed.

Please RSVP to information@phoenixcameraclub.org if you plan to attend. Outsiders are welcome, but they must join the Club to attend the classes. We look forward to seeing you on October 17th at 2pm.
